Johnstown's Dead.

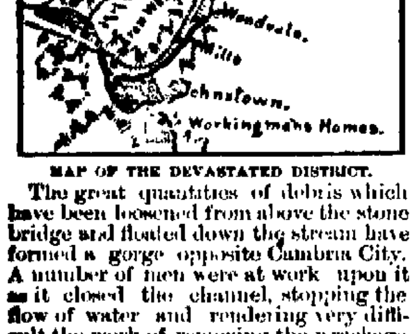

Search for the Bodies Goes Bravely On.

A SLOW AND TEDIOUS TASK.

NEARLY FIFTEEN HUNDRED RECOVERED AT JOHNSTOWN ALONE.

Bodies Found Where Least Expected. Burial Necessary Almost as Soon as Found — Sad Work of Identification. Five Thousand Tents on the Hillside. Other Scenes of Desolation.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., June 11.—There is little change in the general situation here, and all the various departments are moving along in a manner highly satisfactory to the parties in charge. The stopping of work by the Cambria company Sunday gave their men a much needed rest, and they went to work with much more vigor than the men employed on the general work. The same large crowds were on hand for their daily rations, and the various commissary stations were the scenes of great activity.

MAP OF THE DEVASTATED DISTRICT.

The great quantities of debris which have been loosened from above the stone bridge and floated down the stream have formed a gorge opposite Cambria City. A number of men were at work upon it as it closed the channel, stopping the flow of water and rendering very difficult the work of removing the wreckage at the stone bridge.

Another consignment of stationary engines arrived yesterday, making ten in all now here. They were placed in various sections of the town and did most effective work. One was put in position on the stone bridge, and in two hours the work accomplished by it was more effective than the work of one hundred men for the last two days.

The visit of Governor Beaver to this section has given renewed hopes to the stricken people, and on all sides the action taken Sunday is being favorably commented on.

Men were put to work yesterday in draining the tank of the gas works, in which there is at least twenty-five feet of water. It is believed there are a number of bodies in the tank, which will soon be reached.

The train from Pittsburg brought up a large crew, among them being 200 axmen from Michigan, who were put to work on the heavy timbers above the bridge. The timbers are being piled up and as soon as dry enough will be fired. This is what has been urged for some time, and will more effectually remove the debris than weeks of hauling the timber away as has been heretofore done.

More Dead Than Expected.

The great raft is an endless, measureless graveyard, made in a night. Its tombstones are the shattered timbers sticking out of the wreckage. The torn, ragged fragments of walls marking where the streets had been. Though hundreds have already been uncovered the dead are coming to light in surprising numbers, if any one here can be surprised, and there are some faces among them that had never been missed.

People just arriving in Johnstown say that the stench is sickening and fearful, tainting the air of the valley everywhere, while those who have worked here throughout the trying scenes have noticed it only at times and in certain places, showing that their senses are numbed. All the waters are giving up their dead, and the skiffs and graplers are in waiting for them.

The red shirted lumberman, standing midway in the raft, who is called the marker and color bearer, raised his ax once to strike yesterday, but the blow never fell. If it had, it would have cut in twain the first of the bodies taken from that point on the morning of the tenth day. It was the remains of a woman, Emma Roth by name, identified by her broken hearted husband an hour later.

Dr. G. C. Brinkley, one of Johnstown's brightest and most promising physicians, was found at last in the raft near where that of the woman lay. Although but 30 years of age, his appearance when the remains were rescued was that of a man 75 years old. Others unknown, was taken from the raft at all hours of the day. Among them an old man with his little boy clasped in his arms.

A JOHNSTOWN VIEW.

With every hour comes a salute for the hundreds yet buried there. It is the blast of dynamite. Five bodies were found under one single beam of the wreckage in the town yesterday. One of them was Kate Neary, the milliner and modeste.

One of the saddest identifications was that of Miss Blanche Harnish, of Dayton, O. She was a passenger on the day express, and her father had searched for the past three days. Some workmen found her body lying under the trestle near the Pennsylvania railroad station.

George C. Humm was a well known insurance agent. Nobody had given him a thought until yesterday, when his body was carried to the Presbyterian church morgue.

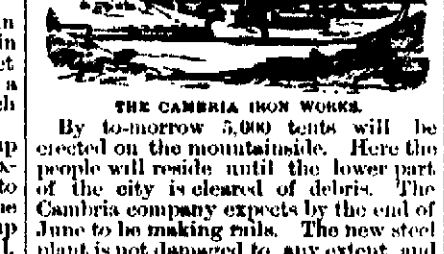

The day is past when the discovered dead can be kept any time for identification. Frightful scenes at the morgues bear quick testimony of this. The keepers say that as soon as the air strikes the corpses now, it becomes impossible to handle them, and the sooner they are buried the better.

There are over fifty new faces on the slabs at the morgues, and a record shows that up to noon yesterday, which was just a week from the time morgues were established, 1,402 people were buried from them who were discovered right in this vicinity. This has nothing to do with the valley or the dead of Nineveh, New Florence and elsewhere. A great many were also buried who were not taken to these morgues.

Credit to the Cambria Iron Company.

Great credit is due the Cambria Iron company for promptly setting the stricken people of this city to work, thereby diverting their minds from their many sorrows. On Saturday night last the company had their natural gas mains under the bed of the Conemaugh river repaired and since that time the flames have been burning brightly. To-day the machine shop, employing a hundred men, is in operation. The boiler shop is clanging with the hammers of a full force of workmen; the blacksmith shop is running full, and what is still more wonderful the six blast furnaces, with their small army of workmen were started up this morning.

Only those who have seen the utter ruin of these works can realize what a bound towards its original prosperity has been accomplished by the company. Nearly 3,000 men are engaged in clearing away the wreckage and operating the departments that are open. About two-thirds of the whole number of the company's employes were left alive by the flood. Nearly 700, or not quite one-half of the Gautier company's men have reported for work. The loss of men in the lower works is from 1,000 to 1,500. Most of the survivors were householders, but the dam-burst made them paupers for the time being. They will, with the company's assistance, begin rebuilding their homes at once.

THE CAMBRIA IRON WORKS.

By to-morrow 5,000 tents will be erected on the mountainside. Here the people will reside until the lower part of the city is cleared of debris. The Cambria company expects by the end of June to be making rails. The new steel plant is not damaged to any extent and the No. 2 rolling mill is nearly ready for work. The time office and draughtsmen's rooms are in full operation. The rod mill will be running in two days, turning out 120 tons of finished material a day. The blowing engines of the blast furnaces are but slightly damaged, the general offices are now occupied and the company's store will resume business to-morrow.

The Debris Set on Fire.

The debris of the raft on the eastern side near the bridge was fired late last night. This means that a number of bodies must be burned to ashes with it. The fire is burning slowly, and no authority is given for the measure. Gen. Hastings didn't care to talk of it.

Thieves Still at Work.

Mr. J. N. Munden, who is in charge of the removal of bodies from the ruins, says that up to this date he has found over $6,000 in money in the pockets of victims. The largest sum was $3,114.24. The pockets of Charles Bischoff contained $245. He states that the robbing of stores and dead bodies still continues, notwithstanding the guard which has been placed over the ruins by the civil authorities.

FLOOD SUFFERERS STARVING.

The Pittsburg Press Says There are Two Hundred in That Condition.

PITTSBURG, June 11.—The Press published a special dispatch from Johnstown as follows: Two hundred people who have suffered from the flood in New Florence, Ninevah and Centerville, who are housed at New Florence, are starving. They are people who have been used to all the comforts and luxury of life before the pent up waters of Conemaugh lake devastated their homes and carried away members of their families.

In the distribution of supplies New Florence has been entirely overlooked. The good people of that town, who have been doing all they can to make comfortable the survivors who have sought their homes for refuge from the flood, are at a loss to know why the place was slighted, whether by accident or design. Yesterday the bakers made the last pound of flour into bread, and when that is eaten there will be nothing for the poor people to do but starve unless their wants are immediately relieved.

The merchants of the place have sold and given everything they had in stock away. They have stocks of staple goods ordered, but cannot get them hauled over the railroads. A citizen of New Florence, in speaking of the matter, said to a Press correspondent: "We must have something to eat down there; coffee, bread and meat are all gone. Little children are crying for more food, and the unhappy parents often go without in order to feed the little ones. We have made applications for supplies, but have not got any yet. Something must be done soon or some of us will die of hunger."

BEREFT OF REASON.

At Least Four People Made So by the Great Disaster.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 11.—Three more of the Johnstown sufferers have survived death only to lose their reason—Rev. Kunz, son, and Mrs. Saeger. The family of Rev. Kunz, a German Lutheran minister, consisted of father, mother and five children, of these all perished except the father and one son, aged 12 years. After striving to recover the bodies of his dear ones, and waiting to bury two children, all that could be found, Rev. Kunz was prevailed upon to come with his little son to this city. He was among those given refuge at the home of the friendless. At first he appeared merely dazed at the terrible afflictions that had befallen him, but now, the result of the agonizing strain, his mind is completely unhinged and he chatters unceasingly in a sad, unmeaning monologue. The boy, two, has become mentally unbalanced. Altogether it is a case that would melt a heart of stone.

At the St. Francis hospital one of the patients from Johnstown is a Mrs. Saeger. She has been raving almost constantly since her arrival, and for the past two days has been violently insane. Her mania has taken a homicidal form, and the sisters fear for their lives, they not being in a position to attend such cases, having none of the provisions necessary. Owing to her sad condition, very little is known of her. In her rambling talk she has mentioned having came originally from Baltimore, and that she had not lived in Johnstown many months before the flood. Whether this is correct or not, of course no one knows. It is hoped this publication may have the effect of bringing her case to the attention of friends, wherever they may be.

The condition of Mr. Foster, one of the Johnstown sufferers, who was taken to the Mercy hospital, and who became insane from grief over the loss of her children on Friday, is unchanged. She continues to rave in a wild manner, and it is doubtful whether her mind can ever be retored. For the present she will remain at the hospital.

No Danger of an Epidemic.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Surgeon General Hamilton has made a report to the president of his investigations at Johnstown and their results. The surgeon general says that there is no danger of epidemic at Johnstown; that the only danger, if any, is at the towns below Johnstown, the inhabitants of which may find their water contaminated. He suggests the boiling of water before its use for drinking or cooking. He says that it will take about ten days to clear away the debris now in the river. He discourages the idea of burning it as the bodies are in the water and they would not be reached by the flames. He says that money and provisions are still needed but that the supply of clothing now on hand is adequate to all necessities. Rubber gloves, however, are needed for handling the dead.

Relief in Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, June 11.—Yesterday was about the busiest day that the ladies' relief committee have yet had. They clothed ninety-two women and children, besides furnishing food to as many more. There is no let up in the contributions, and the way they keep pouring in is something wonderful. The majority of the refugees were children—little ones who had been bereft of their parents—and the ladies were untiring in their efforts to please them.

Money Needed at Renova.

RENOVA, Pa., June 11.—This place is greatly in need of money, a large portion of the town having been destroyed by the flood and the people being too destitute to rebuild without it.

Agricultural Report.

Condition of Cotton for the Month of June.

THE AVERAGES BY STATES.

Effects of the Weather Upon the Growing Crop—The President Makes a Number of Prominent Appointments — Other Dispatches from Washington.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The June report of the department of agriculture indicates a slight reduction in the area of cotton on the Atlantic coast and an increase west of the state of Alabama. Nearly four-fifths of the proposed breadth had been planted by the first of May, but germination was slow, on account of cold and generally dry weather replanting of defective stands general, and some fields were plowed up and planted in corn.

The following averages are preliminary subject to revision from a thorough special investigation now in progress: North Carolina, 89; South Carolina, 99; Georgia, 98; Florida, 100; Alabama, 99; Mississippi, 102; Louisiana, 103; Texas, 103.5; Arkanzas, 104; Tennessee, 106; general average, 101.

The nights have been too cold and the seed bed too dry for germination or vigorous growth. Frosts are reported in May, some as late as the 30th, throughout the cotton belt. Condition is therefore relatively low, lowest in South Carolina, highest in Texas, averaging 98.4. The state averages being: Virginia, 85; North Carolina, 84; South Carolina, 78; Georgia, 80; Florida, 88; Alabama, 83; Mississippi, 85; Louisiana, 90; Texas, 93; Arkansas, 92; Tennessee, 79. General average, 86.4. Replanting was scarcely completed at the date of reports, and in dry land the latest seeding had not germinated. Rains on the last days of May were expected to improve condition materially. In some districts are reports of the presence of lice and injuries by cut worms.

An Explanation Made.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—A reporter of the United Press has called the attention of Mr. Clarkson, first assistant postmaster general, to the postoffice case at Carrelton, Ind., about which the president has been criticised because of the appointment of Mr. Zimmerman. Many papers have quoted Mr. Harrison's speech in the senate in 1885 in opposition to the removal of Mrs. De La Hunt for postmaster of this office, and having critized his action in failing to appoint her now, when she was an applicant, with Mr. Zimmerman.

Mr. Clarkson said: "The president has made a memorandum directing the appointment of Mrs. De La Hunt, supposing the office to be presidential, but the appointment was really of the fourth-class, and I had already appointed Zimmerman upon the recommendation of Congressman Posey, whose endorsements are usually followed in the district, knowing nothing of the desire of the president for Mrs. De La Hunt's reappointment, nor of the circumstances in the case. I am inclined to think that it will yet be changed, and that Mrs. De La Hunt will be appointed, as it was the intention of the president to appoint the Union soldier's widow to the Carrelton postoffice."

Presidential Appointments.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The president has made the following appointments: Thomas J. Morgan, of Rhode Island, commissioner of Indian affairs; Hoyt Sherman, Jr., of Utah Territory, receiver of public moneys at Salt Lake City, Utah; Frank C. Hobbs, of New Hampshire, register of the land office at Salt Lake City, Utah; E. C. Gattry, of Pine City, Minn., register of the land office at Taylors Falls, Minn.; W. C. Wells, of Alabama, register of the land office at Huntsville; E. L. Chapman, of Great Bend, Kan., receiver of public moneys at Larned, Kan.; Charles E. Ford, of Colorado, register of the land office at Lamar, Col.

Justice Matthews' Successor.

WASHINGTON June 11.—Those who are in the confidence of the president deny absolutely the statement made in The Tribune's Indianapolis special that Attorney General Miller is to go on the supreme bench. They say that the president has selected a man to take the place of the late Justice Matthews and that it is not Mr. Miller.

AMONG THE IRON WORKERS.

There Will Be a Shut Down but No Strike at Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, June 11.—Many of the iron and steel mills in the Pittsburg district propose to shut down on July 1 in order to make repairs, take stock, etc. The suspensions will vary from two to six weeks, according to the orders on hand. At these mills the manufacturers will not sign the Amalgamated association scale until they are prepared to resume, and it will doubtless be reported that these mills are on a strike. This will not be the case, however, and little trouble is anticipated.

The Amalgamated association has not only not proposed any advances, but it has revised the extras in a number of departments to more favorable conditions for the manufacturers, and its members are confident that there will be no trouble this year.

At the session yesterday an application was received from the nut workers to be allowed to organize under a charter from the association. The application was referred to a committee.

President Weihe was chosen as principal delegate from the association to represent them in the Scripps syndicate, which proposes to send some representative American workingmen to Paris. The afternoon was taken up by committee meetings.

THE MYSTERY CLEARED UP.

Little Maggie Thompson's Murderer Makes a Horrible Confession.

CLEVELAND, O., June 11.—The long search for Maggie Thompson, the pretty 8-year-old daughter of Jacob Thompson, who disappeared on May 8, ended late Sunday night in the discovery of her dead and mutilated body under the house of a neighbor, Henry Leuth, within a stone's throw of the cottage in which the stricken father and mother lived. She had been outraged and murdered, and Otto Leuth, her self-confessed murderer, a slender, big-headed boy of 16, is now in jail.

A more cold-blooded crime was never committed in this city, and in the commission of the murder and his attempts to conceal the evidence of it the young fiend exhibited a cruelty and cunning of which a very devil might be proud.

While the officers were searching in the cellar, the Leuths and Schevels were discussing the discovery in the house above, the coolest one in the lot apparently being young Otto, who was not in the least surprised by the discovery. The officers decided to take them all into custody, and they were accordingly conveyed to the Barber avenue police station.

The apparent anxiety of the then unknown murderer to assist the police and his ready replies to all questions asked of him aroused suspicion, and he was taken to a cell. While the other persons detained in the lieutenant's room were examined, Detectives Lawrence, Lohrer and Douglass followed the youth to the prison and closely questioned him as to his whereabouts on the day of Maggie's disappearance. Otto at first glibly replied to the questions put to him, but became somewhat confused when his attention was called to several conflicting statements.

While talking with the police officers a woman's shriek from the office resounded through the station, and with a wild cry the boy demanded to know what was the matter. His mother, on being refused admission to her son, had become hysterical, and Otto was so informed. This unnerved him, and he cried frantically for a pistol with which to shoot himself. The detectives now had the prisoner in a penitent mood, and in broken sentences he confessed the horrible murder between his appeals to be permitted to see his his mother, and for a revolver with which to commit suicide.

The confession he repeated to the coroner a short time afterwards, as follows: "I am sixteen years old, and live at No. 42 Merchant's avenue. On Thursday, May 8, the day on which Maggie disappeared while on her way home from school, I was standing at our gate when little Maggie Thompson came by and asked me for some buttons. This was about 11:30 o'clock in the morning. I told her to come into the house, and she came in and went up stairs with me. When she got up stairs I struck her on the head with a hammer two or three times.

"When she fell I pulled off all her clothing, put her on the bed and covered her up. I then went out on the street, but returned to the house again in the afternoon. I left the body in the bed for nearly a week, but did not sleep at home during that time. The Wednesday following I took the body into the cellar and carried the clothes down there also.

"I wrapped the remains in the clothing and pushed them through the opening which communicates with the space between the cellar and the foundation. I crawled behind the body and pushed it to the spot where it was found.

"I killed her because I wanted to outrage her, and after I had struck her I renewed the attempt. The hammer I used had been up stairs a long time, and I think it was brought from the old country."

The murderer had become calm before he was taken before the coroner, and he told this horrible story without much questioning. He was then locked up and charged with murder.

Jumped the Track.

ST. LOUIS, June 11.—As the incoming passenger train on the Iron Mountain railway was nearing the Union depot last night, the engine jumped the track and dashed into an adjoining building. John Gibhard, of this city, who was riding on the pilot of the engine, was instantly killed, Engineer Diement was terribly scalded and Fireman Frank Carr had an arm and leg broken. James Trainer, brakeman, was severely injured. None of the passengers were hurt.

A Family of Shootists.

BALTIMORE, June 11.—The Sun's Warrenton, Va., special says: E. P. Turner shot and killed his brother-in-law Robert Turner yesterday near the plains, Faquir county, Va. He was then severely shot by Robert's brother Edward, who is a son of the late Admiral Turner. The parties are very prominent.

Further Investigation Into the Cronin Murder.

NO SENSATIONAL EVIDENCE.

Several Clan-na-Gael Members on the Stand, But a "Poor Memory" Prevents the Revelations Expected — Another Member Expelled from Camp No. 20.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Michael Whelan was the first witness in the Cronin inquest yesterday. Until two weeks ago he was a police officer. He testified that he was a member of Camp 20, Clan-na-Gael, and knew Dan Coughlin and P. O. Sullivan. Both were members of Camp 20. Since May 4 he had traveled a beat with Dan Coughlin. He never had any conversation with Coughlin about Dr. Cronin, nor did they ever discuss the affairs of the order. He first heard of Dr. Cronin's disappearance Sunday. His cousin, P. O. Sullivan told him of Mr. Conklin's visit to his, Sullivan's, place, and that the doctor had disappeared. Coughlin never spoke to him of Alexander Sullivan.

Before the opening of the inquiry it was given out semi-officially that some very important testimony was to be introduced during the day, and that it was not unlikely that with the inquest would be closed and several arrests ordered. It was also reported that it has been practically decided by the coroner's jury that their verdict will recommend that Alexander Sullivan be arrested and held without bail as an accessory before the fact of Dr. Cronin's murder.

The afternoon session was entirely devoid of the sensational developments that had been anticipated and rumors of which attracted a crowd that filled not only the court room but the spacious corridor outside to suffocation. James Carroll, a former Philadelphia and Reading employe, who said he was thrown out of work by last years' strike and came to Chicago to seek employment, testified that he knew McGeehan and had met him here before and after the Cronin murder. He had loaned him money, although not intimately acquainted with him. He did not know Cronin, and had not conversed with any one concerning the tragedy, although a member of the Clan-na-Gael.

The jury soon dismissed this witness, and Henry J. Jordan, a barkeeper, was put on the stand. He also admitted being acquainted with McGeehan, having been drinking with him at the Sherman house bar within a few days. Closely pressed by both coroner and jury, he denied having said in public that if he had found Cronin in a sewer he would not have taken the trouble to pull him out. His memory was treacherous, and to the bulk of the queries the reply was: "Not that I remember." At this point a circular issued by Lawyer Beggs was read. It called upon members to pay their assessment, and notified them that upon refusal they would be placed on trial as traitors to the cause, and in case of conviction every camp in the United States would be notified of the fact.

Thomas Whelan, brother of Mike Whelan, the detective, and who lodged in the house occupied by Iceman Sullivan, swore that to the best of his knowledge the iceman was home on the night of the murder. The witness also could remember little. He denied membership in the Clan-na-Gael, and was positive that the carpet in the hallway of Sullivan's house had not been removed or changed since the tragedy.

Pat. Gannon, another bartender, who belongs to Camp 20, could not recall what was done at any of the meetings and knew nothing on any point.

The police have a theory that the Windsor theater fire of March last was of incendiary origin. Dr. Cronin's apartments were in the front portion of the building, and Chief Hubbard believes that the fire was started in the hope that this portion of the structure would be destroyed and the incriminating papers in the doctor's possession go up in the blaze. This theory is being followed up. The grand jury for the present term was discharged yesterday, State's Attorney Longenecker informing the court that he might find it necessary to summon a special session to consider the Cronin case.

Another Man Expelled.

CHICAGO, June 11.—John F. Beggs, the senior guardian of Camp 96, now called Camp 20, of the United Brotherhood, the friend of Alexander Sullivan and the comrade of Lawrence Buckley, in the journey east about the time of Dr. Cronin's murder, was expelled from the camp Friday night. Since Dr. Cronin's murder there has been no regular meeting of the camp. Beggs, as senior guardian, has pretended to call the camp together, though he never summoned any one except his friends. A majority of the members of the camp held a meeting Friday night in one of the rooms of the North Side Turner hall, and in the most formal manner, after complying with all the rules of the order governing expulsion, expelled Beggs from the camp.

At a meeting of the Irish-American Republican club Saturday night, Beggs was removed from the presidency of the club, and expelled from membership.

The board of Erin of the Ancient Order of Hibernians held a meeting Sunday, adopted resolutions in memory of Dr. Cronin, and called upon the branches of the order to contribute to the fund for the detection of the murderers.

Minister Egan Not Recalled.

NEW YORK, June 11.—The Herald's Washington correspondent says: The report that Minister Egan, now en route to his post in Chili, has been recalled by the state department on account of the recent developments in the Dr. Cronin murder case, is strenuously denied by the officials of the department. More than this, Mr. Blaine has no intention of recalling Mr. Egan unless some better reasons be assigned than those already printed.

AFFAIRS IN SAMOA

The latest advices from Samoa are to the effect that everything is quiet there, but that Mataafa has recalled his warriors, 3,000 strong, and Tamasese is in camp with 2,000 men. Nearly all these would have dispersed but for the rumor that a German war ship was coming—a rumor that experience has taught Mataafa to dread.

The sunken American ships Trenton and Vandalia will have to be abandoned Being wooden ships they are open to the attacks of the teredo, and their hulls are probably eaten full of holes by this time The guns, however, were saved, and the Trenton's battery of rifled guns is at Mare Island and will soon be cleaned and put in condition for use.

It is gratifying to learn that the bravery and devotion of King Mataafa and his followers are to be suitably acknowledged by our government. They rendered invaluable assistance during and after the hurricane on March 15 and 16 last, and it is only proper that their acts of bravery and their signal help should receive official recognition. The Navy Department is having constructed a whale-boat of the latest improved model, and elegantly fitted up, for presentation to King Mataafa. It will be built at Mare Island Navy Yard, and when completed will be sent under charge of a committee of the officers whom the Samoans helped to rescue, and with an autograph letter from President Harrison, expressing in the strongest terms his admiration of the conduct of the natives toward our ships in their great peril.

The escape of Carter, the "bunko" manager, who swindled Farmer Coffman at Washington C. H., is certainly an instance of justice being balked in our courts by money. It was plain to anyone of common sense that he would not stop until he had put many miles between himself and Washington C. H. if once admitted to bail. No matter how high the bail might be, money is no object to such men where liberty is at stake. In two weeks he can swindle honest old farmers out of twice the sum. If carter had been a common thief he would have gone to the penitentiary sure. To all intents and purposes Carter has bought immunity from the law.

Seattle is hardly less desolate than Johnstown at present. The flames have wrought destruction of property and of home about as completely in the western city as the floods in the eastern town. Fortunately, however, the conflagration at Seattle was unmarked by that appalling loss of human life that formed the most awful feature of the Johnstown disaster.

The shadow has not yet lifted from the desolated Conemaugh valley, and it will not entirely lift for many a year. But it is being lightened not a little by the sympathy of the nation, and by the generous flood of benefactions that pours unceasingly into ruined Johnstown.

If the report should prove true that gold has been found in paying quantities near Guthrie, in Oklahoma, there is likely to be a second rush into that much-talked-of territory, to be followed, perhaps, by a second rush out.

The people of the United States and of Canada are not likely to suffer from a dearth of periodical publications. According to Rowell's "American Newspaper Directory" for 1889, there are at present published, in this country and in Canada no less than 1,581 daily, 12,791 weekly and 1,998 monthly periodicals of various sorts.

With the death of Leonard Swett the chief of a coterie of men whose fame depends upon the parts they took in the nomination and election of Abraham Lincoln, passes away. Swett was known in Chicago as a good lawyer, but throughout the nation as the man who nominated Abraham Lincoln in 1860.

Thirty-three Chinamen of New York city gave a total of $296 to the Conemaugh relief fund. Not so bad when it is remembered that they are liable at any time to need their funds to make good damage done them by American mobs

A Change in the Jury Law.

According to a new law, recently passed, the manner of making up the grand jury in Ohio is somewhat changed. Heretofore the mode has been to take the first fifteen names drawn from the jury box, for grand jurymen. If on convening of the grand jury any fail to respond the deficiency was made up from by-standers. Under the new law all of the jurymen are to appear on the first day of the term. The names are to be called off and the first fifteen are to form the grand jury, and the others which will make up the petit jury, may then be dismissed at the pleasure of the court.

An American painter, living in Florence, has painted a big picture of Satan so "realistically" that when a lot of young people who went to see it began to dance, the shaking of the canvas made the figure have such a semblance of demoniac laughter that the dancers would not continue until the picture was covered.

An odd snake was discovered by O. F. Williams, of Patillo, Ga. The body of this snake is no larger than a very small knitting needle, yet it is fifteen inches long. The movements of the little fellow and the fact that it remains most of the time under water would indicate that it is a variety of watag serpent.

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The recent talk of war between the United States and Great Britain over the Alaska seal fisheries is discredited by Mr. Charles Augustus Williams, of the Alaska Commercial company, whose residence is in this city. Mr. Williams has several times visited the sealing islands in the Behring sea, and talks in a very interesting manner of the queer animals whose killing forms the chief industry of our Alaskan possession, and of the queer people who live there. The American sealing islands are now the principal fur seal fields of the world. Seals have inhabited many climes and countries, but are easily destroyed when man is greedy for their valuable skins.

THE FISHERIES.

Russia alone of the nations has for a long time maintained a policy of protection, and it is in the desire of the United States to follow Russia's example in the territory bought from her by Secretary Seward that has led to the present complications with England. During the winter the thousands on thousands of seals live in the shallow waters of the North Pacific ocean. In the spring they move northward to their breeding grounds to bring forth young. The United States prohibits the Alaska Commercial company, which enjoys a monopoly of sealing privileges under government license, killing female seals, and male seals must be taken only in certain seasons, and not to exceed 100,000 in number.

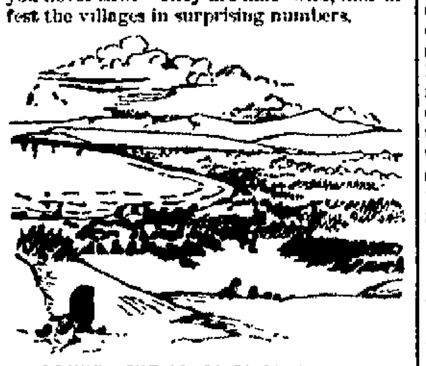

The trouble with Great Britain, or, rather, with her American colonies, arises from the determination of the seal catching vessel owners of British Columbia to take seal indiscriminately in the ocean while the animals are swimming to their breeding grounds. And after their arrival there the British vessel masters claim the right to take all the animals they can find in the ocean three marine leagues from the United States' possessions. As the animals which at this season of the year venture far from land are all females seeking fish food for sustenance of their young, it follows that four-fifths of the catch of the British sealers are mothers, whose destruction means rapid extinction of their race.

"The seal," says Mr. Williams, "is the most interesting animal in the world. I say animal, because he is an animal, rather than a fish. Probably few of the hundreds of thousands of women who wear sealskins know anything of the strange life and habits of the creature from which the soft, rich fur was taken. The seal is a queer combination of instinct amounting almost to intelligence and gross stupidity, of ferocity and gentleness. In the family life of these animals there are customs which, so far as my knowledge goes, are unknown among any other creatures of the earth.

"For a study of natural history in its popular aspects I know of no place superior to the Seal or Pribylov islands, and I predict that ere many years have passed regular excursion steamers will annually carry many thousands of travelers thither. It sounds incredible, but is true, to say that these islands are 2,000 miles west of San Francisco. They are farther west from San Francisco than San Francisco itself is west of Chicago. During the summer this small group of islands is invested in a fog so thick that it can be almost cut up in chunks. Aside from the fogs the summers are rather pleasant.

"But for the fog it is doubtful if the seals would live there. The cool, moist air is just to their liking. There is no spring or autumn up there—simply summer and winter. The winters are about nine months long, and terrible winters they are. During this long, cold, gloomy season the natives hibernate, sleeping most of the time and passing the remainder eating or gambling. They are great gamblers, chiefly at Russian games of cards, but American poker is now becoming well known to them.

"The boys have a passion for pitching half dollars at pegs, and may be seen engaged in that form of gambling from morning till night. They also know how to play baseball, and think it fine sport. The inhabitants of these islands are among the few peoples in the world who are not troubled with mosquitoes or house flies. They have no rats, either, probably because there are no harbors, and the ships never touch the shore. But mice are numerous and pestiferous, and of course there are plenty of cats. Such cats you never saw. They are half wild, and infest the villages in surprising numbers.

DRIVING THE SEALS TO SLAUGHTER.

"After one of our good American cats has been up in the Pribylov islands a few years, feeding on seal meat, he undergoes a wonderful metamorphosis. He becomes short and round like a ball, and his voice grows more offensive than ever. Imagine a nine months' winter, chiefly night, with thousands of these cats running wild! The Aleuts or natives make good wages working for the company, and the company maintains schools and libraries for their benefit and has built them some good houses to live in.

"A peculiarity of these people is that they do not undress when they go to bed. Some of them do not take off their clothing once a year. Grass grows luxuriously up there, but there are few trees. It is a strange climate, for the grass begins growing in May as soon as the temperature rises a single degree above the freezing point. The inhabitants depend entirely upon the seal industry for a livelihood, and if this industry be destroyed they must starve or be removed to some other island. They live almost entirely on seal meat, and do not seem to want anything else.

"There are still there a few of the old Russian families of good blood and fine attainments. It was the daughter of one of these families whom my friend, Professor Elliott, of this city, married when he was up there a few years ago studying seal life for the Smithsonian institute. This brilliant observer has told the world about all it knows of seal life, and his book, 'Our Arctic Province,' published by the Scribners, contains more information about Alaska than all other publications combined. That was a queer place for an American gentleman to go for his wife, but Professor Elliott has no reason to regret his venture.

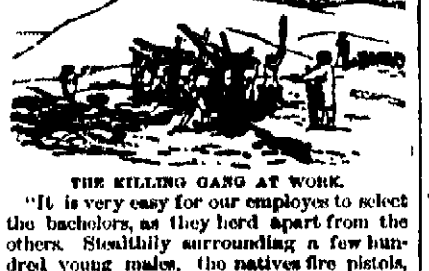

"After spending the winter in the North Pacific ocean, sleeping on top of the water and catching fish for food, the seals return to the Pribylov islands. First always come the full grown males or bulls, the most powerful of their tribe. After a very cautious reconnoisance these whiskered patriarchs make a landing, seeking out their old haunts. Year after year the same bulls will be found in the same spots, showing that the sense of locality is strongly developed in them. For a month these old fellows, fat and lazy, do nothing but sleep. They are too indolent to seek food for themselves. Along in May they rouse a little and begin looking for their wives. The females are the second class to arrive, and then trouble begins.

"From this moment till September the bulls are continually fighting over family matters. They are polygamists of the most pronounced type, the females numbering ten or fifteen to each male. As a general thing the wives find their way to the piece of ground held by their proper husbands, but the trouble is each patriarch struggles constantly to increase his harem. The bulls who have established themselves nearest the shore naturally get the lion's share of wives, but having more than they can guard their neighbors in the rear poach with such success that within a week or two the families are pretty well arranged as to numbers if not as to individual associations.

"During these days of colonization the females are roughly handled by the bulls, many of them being fought over and tossed and dragged from shore to the cliffs day after day for a week. The females, however, utter no word of complaint and offer no resistance. A singular fact is that each bull appears to respect the territorial but not the family rights of his neighbor. He watches his chance to catch a female beyond the borders of his neighbor's ground, when he pounces upon her and, if possible, carries her off. But he will not enter upon the piece of ground over which this neighbor exercises authority.

"There is still a third class of arrivals at the islands, and in this strange classification is one of the most powerful arguments I have ever seen in favor of the theory of natural selection and survival of the fittest. The third and last arrivals are the bachelors or young males, who have no rights, no wives, no standing in the community. They are outcasts, who must flock by themselves. Poor, despised, but envious creatures that they are, they take up ground near the rookeries of the tribe, but apart from them.

"Woe unto the bachelor who presumes to assert his claims to consideration. Upon such an audacious youth the patriarchs make common war, and if the stripling be not torn into shreds he is at least driven into retirement, a sadder but wiser bachelor. These young males are really unfortunate creatures, for not only are they robbed of the society and companionship of fathers, mothers and sisters, but they are selected for slaughter, so that the women of Christendom may revel in sealskin garments. The government permits the company to kill each season 100,000 of these bachelors, because their death does not interfere with breeding.

THE KILLING GANG AT WORK.

"It is very easy for our employes to select the bachelors, as they herd apart from the others. Stealthily surrounding a few hundred young males, the natives fire pistols, utter loud cries, wave blankets and in other ways frighten the seals into flight. After being once started they can be driven like hogs to the killing ground, where men beat them in the head with heavy clubs. Then the skinners deftly take off the pelts, which are dried and seasoned and finally shipped to England to be dressed and manufactured for market. London has practically a monopoly of the sealskin trade, the industry supporting 10,000 souls in that city. This, I think, is a sufficient reason why the English government is in favor of protecting the seals from destruction. England really gets more out of the trade than does the United States, though it is a fact not generally known that this government has already received from the seals alone, in the lessee fees of $3.17 per head and in customs duties on dressed skins reimported from London, a million dollars more than was paid Russia for all Alaska.

"After giving forth their young the females are very busy seeking food and in teaching their pups to swim. A mother will fight savagely for her pup if he remains with her, but if he strays off a little distance she will neither go after him nor succor him if he falls into distress. One mother will not take care of another's offspring, and the old bulls are too lazy to do anything. When the herd goes away in the fall the pups are frisky and fine swimmers, and the mothers in good condition; but the bulls and the bachelors are thin and weak from much fighting and lack of food. There is no stranger spectacle in the world than a seal rookery seen from a cliff—a million water animals spread out upon the sand, all lazily fanning themselves with their broad fore arms or scratching themselves with their feet. It appears as if the whole landscape were in motion, like the surface of the sea."

America's First Record Eclipse.

Col. J. W. Porter, of Bangor, Me., who devotes much time to researches in early colonial history, has lately dug up something of interest to astronomers, it being the fact that the first observation of an eclipse of the sun ever taken by scientific men in America was taken on Long Island (Penobscot Bay) on Oct. 27, 1780. On that occasion a party from Harvard college, headed by Rev. Samuel Williams Hollis, having obtained permission from the British general commanding at Castine, landed at Bounty Cove and made the house of Shubael Williams their headquarters. The totality of the eclipse was visible only in Penobscot Bay, and great interest was felt in the result of the Harvard people's observance thereof, which was very successful.—New York Telegram.

RHEUMATISM AND NEURALGIA

These twin diseases cause untold suffering. Doctors admit that they are difficult to cure—so do their patients. Paine's Celery Compound has permanently cured the worst cases of rheumatism and neuralgia—so say those who have used it.

"Having been troubled with rheumatism at the knee and foot for five years, I was almost unable to get around, and was very often confined to my bed for weeks at a time. I used only one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and was so cured I can now be around, and feel as lively as a boy." FRANK CAROT, Eureka, Nev.

LONG LIFE

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought until we receive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life-preserver, and disease-preventer that has yet been discovered, is simmered down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them?

They do not know, of course, unless they have the courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why don't you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but a dollar for a very large bottle. Try it once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggist may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine, for it really is a mine—of health.

LOUISE H UHLER, Pres

A peculiar sort of a blight has come upon all the sycamore trees in and about the city It was at first thought to be the effect of frosts, in the latter part of May, but that theory seems to be a failure as the blight is progressive and many trees are just beginning to suffer by it In some cases the entire foliage has withered, turned brown and is falling off. The peculiarity of it is that no other variety of trees shows any symptoms of the mysterious disease.—Bucyrus Telegraph

THAT GAME OF BALL

Conemaughs Defeated by Johnstowns in the Fatal 6th Inning—Thirty-Four Dollars Netted.

The benefit ball game attracted quite a crowd to the Prendergast grounds on Monday. Seats were extemporized for the ladies, and the bright weather induced their attendance, and the men who could get off from business were all there. The game began at 2:30, and opened very promisingly for the Conemaughs, who took a good lead. This was gradually overcome, and in the sixth inning, when Harry May began his wild pitching and the whole crew became rattled, the victorious Johnstowns secured ten runs. That settled it.

The opening innings were marked by very creditable playing, but the crowd wanted fun, and got it in the sixth and from that time to the end of the game.

To describe the plays, errors and accidents would require a page, so we make no further endeavor than to append the official score, as taken by Tom Hodder, as below

Caledonia.

Caledonia is beginning to feel patriotic, if there is anything suggestive in a proposed Fourth of July celebration, which is being arranged for with the vim and vigor of young blood The celebration will be somewhat on the old-fashioned, hilarious order, with a few spread-eagle remarks to recall the object of the occasion. Brass bands and parades by civic and secret organizations will be a feature of the day's proceedings, and a general joyful time is anticipated.

Decoration day services were a disappointment here as in many other places on account of the rain. This was the second time the day was observed here, and it is a pleasure to note a general participation in the exercises. It is significant of the death of a sentiment that prevailed to an extent here during the cruel rebellion. It is a matter of local history that about the rankest of southern sympathies prevailed in this locality. It was a feeling contemporary with the famous Crawford county spirit, which actuated meetings out of sympathy for the South, where inflammatory speeches were made, and some of the women went to the "love-feast" with concealed dirk knives. But this sentiment has died, and peace and good will remains, and amid the prosperity of the country we join in perpetuating the memory of those who fell in fighting for our peace

The postoffice candidates have settled down to await the movements of Mr Clarkson's ax, which is sure to come. The office is not exactly a sinecure, but it is an office, you know, and there is nothing like it. As to who has the inside track it is hard to tell, amid the dubiousness of post office appointments.

The school superintendency agitation has somewhat subsided. Conservative thought will allow the question two sides, and amid all the censure of the school board there are some extenuating circumstances Mr. Ranck is a gentleman and a scholar, a good citizen and all that, but it is proper to give the board credit of having reasons other than personal for his dismissal. The entire corps of teachers has been engaged for another year

Children's day was observed at the M E church Sunday. This pretty ceremony of flowers and song is the delight of the children, and was attended with its usual happy results

Baptismal services were to have taken place by the Universalist church Sunday, but the weather prevented, and a postponement of four weeks was a consequence

The Methodists are repairing their church building, and will expend a few thousand dollars in a vestibule addition and a general overhauling.

Dr. Hahn had a chase early Sunday morning after an old toper who deliberately carried off a two gallon jug of cider-vinegar or vinegar cider from his residence. The Doctor was up and after him, and after a half mile chase captured the culprit and marched him back with the stolen property The Doctor came back puffing and blowing, and with great beads of perspiration on his classic frontispiece The good natured medicine man dismissed the thief with a Sunday lecture This is a stress of prohibition.
